Dear Resident,

Re: Trico House Works

In our last letter, we informed you of the delays to the works at Trico House and the updated work dates.

Since resuming works in March, Jessella have made good progress on Trico House. The timber cladding and corium panels have now been completely removed off the taller section of Trico House and Jessella is currently removing the render (white exterior) and polystyrene on this section of the building. The 9mm cement particle board (CP Board) on the building is currently being replaced with 12mm CP board.

Works are also progressing well along the ground floor of Trico House. The corium tiles by the businesses on the ground floor have been removed on the north and west elevations and Jessella is currently working on removing the tiles by the Cybertots Nursery.

Thank you for your patience during the removal works. We appreciate that this stage of the works is disruptive and due to the nature of polystyrene, also messy. Jessella are cleaning the work area daily as well as any polystyrene that may have fallen to the ground floor at the end of the working day.

Once all removal works are complete, Jessella will install rockwool insulation in place of the polystyrene and then begin replacing the render and timber cladding with a similar looking safer material. The installation work will be quieter than the removal work.

Jessella will be using their best endeavours to try and reduce the amount of disruption that the works will cause.

Works to the shorter section of Trico House are still pending approval from A2Dominion.
